HOW TO SUCCEED IN HBL

Jaden & Samuel (P6 Attentiveness)

The COVID-19 pandemic took the world by surprise. Being a health crisis, countries all over the world closed schools, forcing them to resort to Home-based Learning (HBL). Learning has evolved utilising technology to keep it afloat. Students now learn from home with the help of gadgets to attend online classes. As BBS students, we are privileged to have our lessons in Zoom with the help of our individual student portals. Almost everything now is only one click away.

In order to succeed in online learning, students must be able to focus during lessons. This can be attained by restricting the learning environment to a personal room. A productive study space should have good lighting, comfortable seating and it must be free from distraction. In addition, we should be within reach of our textbooks, stationery and other learning materials. During online classes, it is best to avoid playing games and chatting with friends but pay full attention instead. By paying attention, we do not miss out on any homework and reminders given by the teachers.

Success in HBL lies in having good time management and communication. One of the benefits of online learning is the ability to learn at our own pace. Making a timetable is also very important. With a lot going on, it is hard to find time to sit down and finish our work. Revising for tests means that we will likely spend more time studying than doing other things like helping our parents in daily house chores. Creating a study schedule allows us to prioritise our tasks, giving us enough time to study, help in house chores and relax. As the saying goes, "Work hard, play hard". Communication is also essential for teachers and students to work together well. When we are struggling, we should never hesitate to contact our teachers.

Last but not the least, exercising is very important. Taking our vitamins and keeping fit are all good ways to take care of our body. Exercising has a lot of good effects like releasing stress and losing weight. In a time when most of us sit and stare at our screens, it is important and almost vital that we get up once in a while to bike around the park or simply stay at home and play skipping rope once in a while.

Home-based learning provides a high-quality learning opportunity for students. It is a pity to waste such an opportunity as there are so many benefits that we can reap from it. One must be highly motivated and persistent to succeed in HBL. From now onwards, education for future children will never be the same as compared to the education we once knew. Nevertheless, for now, we must try our best to adapt to online learning so that we can succeed in our education.
